The Living Library

What it is

The Living Library supports teachers and early childhood educators to bring a global perspective to their work with children and young people. The Living Library brings to life the global issues in which the OWC library specializes by bringing people from diverse cultures, language groups and with different life experiences into the classroom to share their stories.

Who can use it

The living library is available to school teachers, pre-service teachers (students enrolled in teacher training) and early childhood educators who will benefit by expanding their own knowledge of global issues and active citizenship.

The Living Library also supports community partnerships which foster global citizenship and is available to communities and organisations engaging in global citizenship and related activities.

Direct links to Cross Curriculum Priorities

Global citizenship is strongly embedded in the Western Australian Curriculum, with clear links to a range of learning areas, and also to the cross curriculum priorities and general capabilities. The Early Years Learning Frameworks and the National Quality Standard are also closely aligned with global citizenship concepts.

Living library presenters focus their interactive presentations around themes that relate directly to these frameworks.

Our People

The Living Library presenters are supported by the OWC education team members who have extensive expertise in professional education and training with a focus on enabling responsible and skilled global citizenship. They ensure that the living library presentations are well researched, participatory and interactive, and aligned to the cross curriculum priorities and general capabilities.
