

Young children as global citizens:
connecting to and contributing to the world.
A half-day workshop for early childhood educators

Tuesday 17th March: 1pm-4.30pm
at the One World Centre
5 King William Street, Bayswater

Young children are connected to a changing world in many ways and with the right support are able to act to improve their society and environment. A global perspective in the early years gives children knowledge and skills to help them navigate their world now and into the future. At this workshop you will discover the clear links between global citizenship and the National Quality Standard, Early Years Learning Framework and Australian Curriculum. You can also explore our library's exciting new collection of early childhood resources and take away ideas to help young children learn about:

- ★ places in the world and the connections they have with those places;
- ★ ways they see the world and how others see the world differently;
- ★ things they have in common with, and things they can learn from people of many cultures;
- ★ ideas of fairness and how people's actions have consequences for others;
- ★ developing empathy for and building peaceful relationships with others;
- ★ the importance of the natural environment and how we can care for it.
